Savoir

'to know,' or knowing
is not dependent
on a single sense
it spans the entire spectrum
of sensation
from abstract thought
to physical contact;

we arrive at knowledge via impressions however, some recipients are not tuned to our frequency and messages become lost in a mire of previous experience,

such was the case with you.

with every artifice
in a poet's repertoire
i all but wrote it in the sky
yet delivery failed;
so strong were your previous impressions that any new message was thoroughly corrupted.

we are all challenged in varying degrees, no one is able to appreciate another's emotional state, though we are able to draw on common human experience -- but what a peculiar mix it makes.

to hell with my usual mode of expression; i dredged for song instead, a female voice to deliver female emotion.

perhaps your male filters are less severe with music and song. try and understand how much i luv you; leave your past in the past,

i am Now,

fresh new experience.
