

Written in the Wind

by wisp Saturday, Nov 20 2010, 9:53am international / poetry / post is not a defeatist remark; it is anything but defeatist.

a certain sensitivity is required to understand its import.

if we wish to comprehend the vastness of the message we must first draw away from everything that dulls
our mind and senses;

mindless titillations
American materialism
and hedonism
clogs our fine human receptors and depletes
our precious vitality.

turn off the perverse and hateful electronic media for a day and then on a regular basis, allow your senses to cool -- your being will begin its fine tuning almost immediately.

leave off the competitive games American values and other distractions allow the dead to bury the dead -- embrace Life and the harmony of the natural world, listen to its 'music.'

healthy and enduring values are born of Love, mutual cooperation and mutual assistance not from sociopathic, fear ridden, hate-filled American divisionism.

we are One, or we are nothing;
we are our brothers' keeper

we are our brother;
it is time to understand that reality and become aware of those influences that divide us and would ultimately lead to our destruction and ruination, this is not difficult to comprehend.

no one owns you or any part of the natural world, we share these gifts with each other.

sit or walk quietly
and listen to the wind,
its message is timeless;
it speaks of Freedom, remove all imposed shackles (debt slavery)
and let go - acquisitiveness and constant appropriation
are roads to slavery and despair;
release yourself
move freely with the wind, reject all manner of constraints, liberate yourself from bondage of every kind.

the wind speaks to everyone according to their level of understanding,
it helps us synchronise our being with Creation until we finally learn that we are and always have been,
Free;
no ones' master or servant simply One with all Existence -- an existence born of Love and manifest in Harmony.

I leave you with sublime Peace and boundless Love, nature's gifts to everyone -- let no one rob you of your inheritance,

We are ONE.

