Only
at the mid of night till the darkest hour before dawn does He come in secret to steal my soul

momentarily my longing is quelled

When the moon hangs full in blackness Glistening skin and scented sweat, I am overtaken!

Suspended like a young lover in ecstasy I am transfixed by His burning lust and corundum eyes my quivering frame betrays my longing

Slanted lids and cloven smiles steal my soul and crucify my mind; helpless, limp, subdued, in His arms I am transported

Like a virgin dervish spinning in ecstatic bliss
All is Lost; existence quivers in sympathy as Our souls unite in dreaded Synchrony

Hoisted and propelled through worlds of frozen fire and burning ice the Gods pay tribute to those who dare lay siege at heaven's gate and storm the walls of paradise.

Listen to whispers of time swirling inexorably toward completion I am overtaken, my soul is stolen
And with it the need to survive

I am sacrificed nightly in His arms and impaled by his thorny song.

Who steals my soul so easily
His reptile eyes and agile tongue Find my secret treasure-rooms
How much can a body bear?

As dawn approaches He departs like a shadow A phantom; my Satanic lover has filled me with the knowledge of all things and a cure for all of life's vexations

Days are for children's pursuits nights are reserved for Him Who dares approach the secret places where nymphs and satyrs frolic?

Who makes slaves of demons and forces Lucifer to relinquish his light?

I surrender so that I may overcome the Light --
There is no Light without darkness to define it!

He haunts the dreams of Kings and beggars,
She gives rise to galaxies?

What would You?
