Re-call

like a desperate scream so distant it was almost inaudible somehow i heard it through time from the past or future i cannot tell but it dripped desperation a warning it caused my skin to stand, why me? was i targeted by some strange sorcery, was it clairaudience or just approaching schizophrenia? i cannot tell but there are some strange people around perhaps one or two have discovered a warp hole or maybe it's genetic i must cease blind guessing, making erroneous assumptions and delve deep into this phenomenon aha, i have it! a little less mental meandering and more magnification/focus then release it suddenly which leaves a door open momentarily an aperture unaffected by time/space i have re-discovered the key to appearing and disappearing, the secret is out now many have wondered about my uncanny abilities to read future events and temperaments from photos man has put an end to entire civilisations not once but many times it is hard wired in the species neither time nor space is able to shake it loose the scream i heard was a memory a warning not to repeat the same mistakes again and again but this intelligence is not familiar with man, a species cursed to repeat the same deadly mistakes until it extinguishes itself the screaming voice seems familiar in the instant of a nuclear detonation i realise i re-collect that i am constantly re-incarnated to witness global catastrophes and lament the fact that i am responsible

i am alive now breathing screaming
