Circus of the Dead

by lex via jill - Jungle Drum Newswire Saturday, Aug~5~2017, 8:42am international / poetry / post there's no cheer or applause in this circus clowns have no need of make-up they run this circus in plain appearance, given authority by the dead audience outside the ring all is inverted in this place laughter is replaced by misery and regret -the audience, due to foolish previous actions and inactions are forced to watch performers mock and torture them relentlessly this circus was created as a consequence of the audience's group folly and subservience to the clowns that run this torturous event, relishing in their insanity and un-reason as they run rampant tormenting the audience is extreme but justified, each according to his/her lot tho waxen, grimacing faces speak in one chorus of silly fool me, we have earned our 'reward' and the only escape from this torment is to suffer the consequences of previous actions until all debts are cleared whips lash souls without refrain, woe are the dead in this place of anguish the name of this circus is world do not be beguiled, a single soul rises from the bench screaming, 'i resist this nightmare world,' understanding that all the clowns would focus all their malevolence on the refusenik -- he must be contained, others may also refuse to be maltreated, which would end the torture of this place forever

Underground Oz Poetry. http://ozpoetry.lingama.net/news/poem-756.html