

Beat

international / poetry / post hear it before it manifests as form, there is a beat, throb, pulse that is the source of all sounds which is the substrate of all things do u hear it in the rustling leaves of a forest or the crashing of waves on the shore?

all sound is synchronised to the original beat/vibration and like waves it rolls forever in the forever the hissing of the wind thru long grasses the symphonies of nature are all expressions of the perfection and inviolable purity -- what do u hear and feel with ur body and mind, or r u fussed out of ur tree in the garden of life where the drone of wasps and buzzing of bees express the beat after their own kind?

listen without distraction well past the expression of a particular sound and the primordial throb/pulse of life would seize every particle of ur being and synchronise u with the original beat/logos, which is creation, incomprehensible to a mind drowned in static -- notice that sound is never static it is pure kinesis as infinity has no end or beginning it saturates that which was not into that which is forever filling the void with life how childish ur silly man-made gods that claim they are the beginning and end as creation is beginningless and endless

when do waves cease in a fluid medium?

they do not, even tho ignorance would give the appearance of stasis -- nothing ceases in reality, it cannot, as all exists in flux in a medium of light close ur eyes and surrender everything including thought to the voluptuous vibrations of sound within u, hear it with ur mind's eye not the auditory organ which is gross and only responds to gross stimuli where would u? everywhere or nowhere, which expressions share the same meaning/quality u cannot see me if u do not hear me first u cannot feel me until u hear and see me, who am i?

if u answer anything but you, u are mistaken
